19 NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION TO DISMISS

20 TO PLAINTIFF AND PLAINTIFF’S ATTORNEYS OF RECORD: NOTICE IS 21 HEREBY GIVEN that on January 6, 2016, at 2:00 p.m. or as soon thereafter as counsel may be
22 heard, before the Honorable William H. Orrick in Courtroom 2, located at 450 Golden Gate
23 Avenue, San Francisco, CA 94102, Defendants David John Slater and Wildlife Personalities, Ltd.
24 (“WPL”) will and hereby do move the Court to dismiss this case under Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(1) for 25 lack of standing to sue, and Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6), for failure to state a claim upon which relief
26 can be granted. By each of these motions, Defendants seek dismissal of this matter with prejudice.

1 “whether legitimate or not” and that includes “children legally adopted” by the author. See 17
2 U.S.C. §§ 101, 201, 203 and 304. An author’s “widow or widower owns the author’s entire 3 termination interest unless there are any surviving children or grandchildren of the author, in 4 which case the widow or widower owns one-half of the author’s interest.”
5 § 203(a)(2)(A). Accepting Plaintiff’s standing argument would present the bizarre possibility of 6 protracted family and probate court battles when the offspring of non-human authors scrum over
7 the rights to valuable works.

8 To be sure, there are quite reasonable arguments for conferring legal standing for animals
9 (via human ad litem representatives) in some areas of law – especially with regard to legislation
10 enacted to protect the animals in question. See, e.g., Hogan, COMMENT: Standing for Nonhuman
11 Animals: Developing a Guardianship Model from the Dissents in Sierra Club v. Morton, 95 Calif.
12 L. Rev. 513 (2007). The law of trusts now expressly recognizes the legitimacy of trusts for the 13 benefit of non-human animals. See Uniform Trust Code 105(b) (“A charitable organization
14 expressly entitled to receive benefits under the terms of a charitable trust or a person appointed to 15 enforce a trust created for the care of an animal . . . has the rights of a qualified beneficiary under 16 this [Code].”). Defendants David Slater, a nature photographer who is deeply concerned about
17 animal welfare, and WPL wholeheartedly embrace legal standing and property rights for animals
18 in those contexts.

19 Still, if the humans purporting to act on Plaintiff’s behalf wish for copyright to be among 20 the areas of law where non-human animals have standing, they should make that dubious case to 21 Congress – not the federal courts. Enumerating the reasons why animals should not be able to sue
22 for copyright infringement would serve no useful purpose in this motion since controlling Ninth
23 Circuit authority requires dismissal of this action.

24 CONCLUSION

25 For the foregoing reasons, the Court should dismiss the complaint with prejudice.
